The term “Creolization” is used to evoke cultural fusion and the emergence of new cultures across the globe. However, it has been under-theorized and tends to be used as a simple synonym for “mixture” or “hybridity.” In this volume, by contrast, renowned scholars give the term historical and theoretical specificity by examining the different domains and circumstances in which the process takes place, uncovering a remarkable history and re-opening the term for new theoretical use.

“As we try to grasp the organization of human diversity, globally as well as in varied regional contexts, creole concepts have been good to think with—different and sometimes conflicting directions. Read this book, and you will have a very clear idea of the perspectives and the controversies!”

–ULF HANNERZ, STOCKHOLM UNIVERSITY

“This innovative volume constitutes a major contribution to the on-going debates around the meaning of creolization. Bringing together contributions by scholars in anthropology, history, linguistics and literary theory, it provides both new empirical studies and fresh theoretical insights on some of the most pressing questions of identity facing us today.”

–MEGAN VAUGHAN, CAMBRIDGE UNIV.

“At last, a brave collection of essays on creolization. Framed by a skilful, remarkably even-handed introduction, the volume addresses the rich and controversial histories of the construct, and pushes valiantly to disentangle it from related terms, often used as synonyms, such as hybridity, globalization, transnationalism and transculturation. Best of all, the volume seeks out an exciting array of critical voices, both recent and long-standing, in its presentation of debates about cultural and linguistic mixture. It is sure to become a touch-stone work on these thorny but urgent subjects in anthropology, history, sociology, linguistics, comparative literature and cultural studies, as well as in the many vaster conversations now taking place across disciplines.”

–JANET HART, UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, ANN ARBOR

“This fine set of essays offers the first systematic effort to historicize the term ‘creolization’ and the processes it names, as well as assessing the term’s usefulness for contemporary cultural theory. Readers will find vigorous debate between the participating authors, who by no means adhere to a single editorial line, allowing their differences of approach and emphasis to illuminate just what is at stake. This is a really valuable collection of essays, sure to become the first reference point for discussion of creolization.”

–PETER HULME, UNIVERSITY OF ESSEX
CREOLIZATION

SALE PRICE: Hardback, 978-1-59874-278-8: $52.00 / £25.60 * Qty: ______ = $___________
SALE PRICE: Paperback, 978-1-59874-279-4: $23.96 / £11.20 * Qty: ______ = $___________

*TAX: $___________
POSTAGE: $___________
TOTAL: $___________

Name ____________________________________________
Address __________________________________________
Address __________________________________________
Address __________________________________________
Phone __________________________ Email ____________

PAYMENT:
☐ Visa ☐ Mastercard ☐ Check [U.S. customers make out to UA PRESS]
Card Number __________________________ Exp. Date ____________
Name on Card __________________________
Signature ______________________________________

CUSTOMER SERVICE CONTACTS

CUSTOMERS IN THE US, LATIN AMERICA, & CARIBBEAN
Left Coast Press, Inc., c/o University of Arizona Press • 355 S. Euclid Ave., Suite 103 • Tucson, AZ 85719
phone or fax: 1-800-426-3797 or 1-520-626-4218 • orders@uapress.arizona.edu • Web: www.LCoastPress.com

CUSTOMERS OUTSIDE THE AMERICAS
Berg Publishers, c/o Orca Book Services
Stanley House, 3 Fleets Lane
Poole BH15 3AU United Kingdom
phone +44 (0)1202 665 432 / fax +44 (0)1202 666 219
orders@orcabookservices.co.uk

CUSTOMERS IN CANADA
UBC Press, c/o UNI Presses • 34 Armstrong Avenue • Georgetown ON L7G 4R9
phone: 877-864-8477 • fax: 877-864-4272 • orders@gtwcanada.com • www.ubcpress.ca