Figure 1

A diagram illustrating the preferences of different groups in society. The diagram is divided into four quadrants, each representing a different group: Poor B, Poor A, Rich B, and Rich A. The x-axis represents the preferred tax rate, with different symbols indicating the preferences of each group at various tax rate levels. The y-axis is labeled 'Preferred tax rate.' The diagram also indicates the interaction between the groups, with arrows showing the direction of preference at different tax rates.
Figure 2